About the Center for Health Care Ethics
The Albert Gnaegi Center for Health Care Ethics at Saint Louis University is committed to excellence in teaching, service, and research in health care. Engaging in both secular and religious discourse, the center brings Catholic, Jesuit tradition into interdisciplinary study of philosophical and legal bioethics. The Center for Health Care Ethics has a long history of serving faith-based health care institutions through consultations and educational programs. It's received more than $2 million in research funding from government agencies and foundations, including grants from the National Institute of Health and SSM Health Care. Students can earn a Ph.D. in health care ethics while completing professional training in law or medicine. The center offers three dual-degree programs: M.D/Ph.D., J.D./Ph.D. and M.A./Ph.D. It further offers two joint Ph.D. programs with the departments of philosophy and theological studies.
