

*Health is a Human Right

This Offer is Subject to Geographic and Economic Limitations*

Friday, April 13

3:00 - 4:00 p.m.

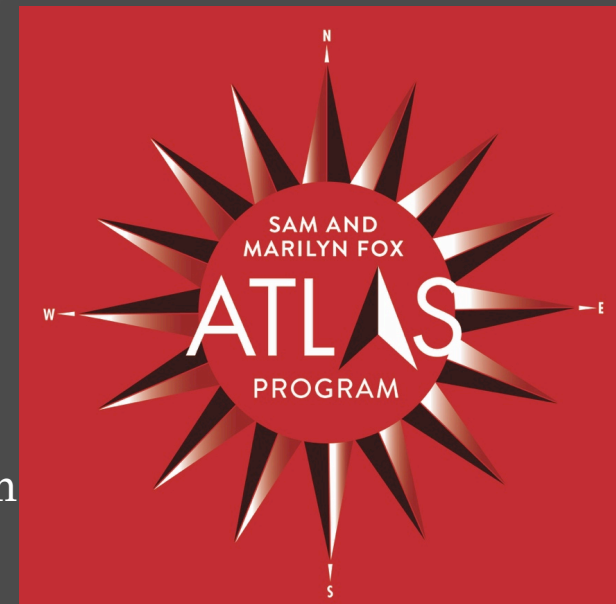

Room 124, Center for Global Citizenship

Using tuberculosis treatment in Romania as a case study, Dr. Stillo will discuss how medically curable diseases become “socially incurable.” The paper is based upon more than five years of field research in a Romanian TB sanatorium.

Dr. Jonathan Stillo is a medical anthropologist and an Assistant Professor at Wayne State University.

Sponsored by:

Russian and East European Studies (REEAS) Program
Department of Sociology and Anthropology

SAINT LOUIS UNIVERSITY