RELATED EXPERIENCE

Washington University School of Law St. Louis, MO

Assistant Director of Student Services

Summer, 2001-Spring, 2006

As the School of Law's first Student Advising Coordinator, I developed and administered a variety of academic support and student advising programs. Some examples of the programs I developed follow:

The First Year Workshops, which aided first year law students in their acclimation to the more rigorous academic environment of law school.

The Academic Skills Program, which was specifically aimed at helping low-performing law students acquire stronger organizational, time management, outlining and test-taking skills.

The Supplemental Bar Program, which aided students in studying for the Bar Examination by enhancing their essay writing skills and helping them find the tools to adequately prepare for the examination. In addition, I did intensive work with Law School graduates who had failed previous Bar Examinations, working very closely with them to pinpoint weaknesses and to focus on improving their examination skills in those areas.

Law School Handbook, I developed and edited the Law School's Student Handbook.

In addition, I aided students in registering for classes, and assisted them in finding the best courses, given their interests and abilities. I was also involved in general student advising, acting as an information conduit to help students find the resources they needed. I also worked closely with students, who received disability accommodations, helping them find the resources that would best aid their studies.
